PREPARING to Read

from The Pardoner’s Tale

from The Canterbury Tales

Poetry by GEOFFREY CHAUCER
Translated by NEVILL COGHILL

Connect to Your Life

Roots of Evil “The love of money is the root of all evil,” the Bible tells us. In a group discussion, share thoughts about the desire for money and the ways in which it influences human behavior. In what situations is the desire for money evil or harmful? When does the desire seem normal or legitimate to you?

Build Background

Begging Pardon Among the more memorable of the Canterbury pilgrims is the Pardoner, described in lines 689–734 of the “Prologue” (pages 131–132). Licensed by the church to grant indulgences (documents forgiving peoples’ sins), pardones were in theory supposed to grant them only to people who showed great charity. In practice, however, many pardones simply sold their pardons to make money for the church or for themselves. To spur sales, unethical pardones often threatened reluctant buyers with eternal doom. Chaucer’s Pardoner encourages buyers with a story that illustrates the dangers of the love of money.

Focus Your Reading

LITERARY ANALYSIS MORAL TALE A moral tale teaches a lesson about what is right and wrong in human behavior. In a moral tale, good characters usually triumph and evil characters come to a bad end. These outcomes send a message, or moral (which is often stated explicitly in the tale). In “The Pardoner’s Tale,” the moral is the biblical observation that “the love of money is the root of all evil.” The Pardoner states this moral in Latin, the language of the medieval Roman Catholic Church:

Radix malorum est cupiditas.

As you read this tale, pay close attention to the actions of the characters, as well as those of the Pardoner, the teller of the tale.

ACTIVE READING PREDICTING To make reasonable predictions about what will happen next and what will happen in the end, take the following into account:

- the characters, settings, and events presented in the story
- foreshadowing, or hints about what is going to happen
- your own knowledge of human behavior and experiences
- what you know of other literary works with similar characters, settings, or events

READER’S NOTEBOOK As you read, jot down your predictions in a chart like this one. Continue reading to see if the events match your predictions.

THE CANTERBURY TALES 141
from The Pardoner's Prologue

"My lords," he said, "in churches where I preach
I cultivate a haughty kind of speech
And ring it out as roundly as a bell;
I've got it all by heart, the tale I tell.

I have a text, it always is the same
And always has been, since I learnt the game,
Old as the hills and fresher than the grass,
Radix malorum est cupiditas.

I preach, as you have heard me say before,
And tell a hundred lying mockeries more.
I take great pains, and stretching out my neck
To east and west I crane about and peck
Just like a pigeon sitting on a barn.
My hands and tongue together spin the yarn
And all my antics are a joy to see.
The curse of avarice and cupidity
Is all my sermon, for it frees the pelf.
Out come the pence, and specially for myself,
For my exclusive purpose is to win
And not at all to castigate their sin.
Once dead what matter how their souls may fare?
They can go blackberrying, for all I care!

GUIDE FOR READING
8 Radix malorum est cupiditas: Latin for "The root of all evil from the Bible (1 Tim.)
10 mockeries: false praises
16 cupidity (ˌkə-pə-tē): excessive desire for especially for money
17 pelf: riches, esp that are acquired by any means, esp trickily
18 pence: pencies, coins of the old English currency
19–22 What is the attitude toward the Pardoner's preaching?
And thus I preach against the very vice
I make my living out of—avarice.

And yet however guilty of that sin
Myself, with others I have power to win
Them from it, I can bring them to repent;
But that is not my principal intent.
Covetousness is both the root and stuff
Of all I preach. That ought to be enough.

“Well, then I give examples thick and fast
From bygone times, old stories from the past.
A yokel mind loves stories from of old,
Being the kind it can repeat and hold.

What! Do you think, as long as I can preach
And get their silver for the things I teach,
That I will live in poverty, from choice?
That’s not the counsel of my inner voice!
No! Let me preach and beg from kirk to kirk

And never do an honest job of work,
No, nor make baskets, like St. Paul, to gain
A livelihood. I do not preach in vain.
There’s no apostle I would counterfeit;
I mean to have money, wool and cheese and wheat

Though it were given me by the poorest lad
Or poorest village widow, though she had
A string of starving children, all agape.
No, let me drink the liquor of the grape
And keep a jolly wenche in every town!

“But listen, gentlemen; to bring things down
To a conclusion, would you like a tale?
Now as I’ve drunk a draft of corn-ripe ale,
By God it stands to reason I can strike
On some good story that you all will like.

For though I am a wholly vicious man
Don’t think I can’t tell moral tales. I can!
Here’s one I often preach when out for winning. . .”

WORDS

to

KOEN

kov't-es-n's) n. an excessive desire for wealth or possessions.
from The Pardoner's Tale

It's of three rioters I have to tell
Who, long before the morning service bell,
Were sitting in a tavern for a drink.
And as they sat, they heard the hand-bell clink
Before a coffin going to the grave;
One of them called the little tavern-knave
And said "Go and find out at once—look sly!—"
Whose corpse is in that coffin passing by;
And see you get the name correctly too."
"Sir," said the boy, "no need, I promise you;
Two hours before you came here I was told.
He was a friend of yours in days of old,
And suddenly, last night, the man was slain,
Upon his bench, face up, dead drunk again.
There came a privy thief, they call him Death,
Who kills us all round here, and in a breath
He speared him through the heart, he never stirred.
And then Death went his way without a word.
He's killed a thousand in the present plague,
And, sir, it doesn't do to be too vague
If you should meet him; you had best be wary.
Be on your guard with such an adversary,
Be primed to meet him everywhere you go,
That's what my mother said. It's all I know."

WORDS TO KNOW
wary (wär′ē) adj. cautious; on one's guard adversary (əd′vər-sər′ē) n. an enemy; opponent
The publican joined in, "By St. Mary, what the child says is right; you'd best be wary, this very year he killed, in a large village a mile away, man, woman, serf at tillage, page in the household, children—all there were. Yes, I imagine that he lives round there.

'ts well to be prepared in these alarms, he might do you dishonor." "Huh, God's arms!"
The rioter said, "Is he so fierce to meet? I'll search for him, by Jesus, street by street. God's blessed bones! I'll register a vow! Here, chaps! The three of us together now, fold up your hands, like me, and we'll be brothers in this affair, and each defend the others, and we will kill this traitor Death, I say! Away with him as he has made away with all our friends. God's dignity! Tonight!"

They made their bargain, swore with appetite, these three, to live and die for one another. As brother-born might swear to his born brother. And up they started in their drunken rage and made towards this village which the page and publican had spoken of before. Many and grisly were the oaths they swore, fearing Christ's blessed body to a shred; 'If we can only catch him, Death is dead!'

When they had gone not fully half a mile, just as they were about to cross a stile, they came upon a very poor old man who humbly greeted them and thus began, 'God look to you, my lords, and give you quiet!' To which the proudest of these men of riot gave back the answer, "What, old fool? Give place! Why are you all wrapped up except your face? Why live so long? Isn't it time to die?"

The old, old fellow looked him in the eye and said, "Because I never yet have found, though I have walked to India, searching round
Village and city on my pilgrimage,
One who would change his youth to have my age.
And so my age is mine and must be still Upon me, for such time as God may will.

"Not even Death, alas, will take my life;
So, like a wretched prisoner at strife
Within himself, I walk alone and wait
About the earth, which is my mother's gate,
Knock-knocking with my staff from night to noon
And crying, 'Mother, open to me soon!"

Look at me, mother, won't you let me in?
See how I wither, flesh and blood and skin!
Alas! When will these bones be laid to rest?
Mother, I would exchange—for that were best—
The wardrobe in my chamber, standing there
So long, for yours! Aye, for a shirt of hair
To wrap me in? She has refused her grace, Whence comes the pallor of my withered face.

"But it dishonored you when you began
To speak so roughly, sir, to an old man,
Unless he had injured you in word or deed.
It says in holy writ, as you may read,
'Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head
And honor it.' And therefore be it said
'Do no more harm to an old man than you,'

Being now young, would have another do
When you are old”—if you should live till then.
And so may God be with you, gentlemen,
For I must go whither I have to go."

"By God," the gambler said, "you shan't do so,
You don't get off so easy, by St. John!
I heard you mention, just a moment gone,
A certain traitor Death who singles out
And kills the fine young fellows hereabout.
And you're his spy, by God! You wait a bit.
Say where he is or you shall pay for it,
By God and by the Holy Sacrament!"
say you've joined together by consent
To kill us younger folk, you thieving swine!"

"Well, sirs," he said, "if it be your design
To find out Death, turn up this crooked way
Towards that grove, I left him there today
Under a tree, and there you'll find him waiting.
He isn't one to hide for all your prating.
You see that oak? He won't be far to find.
And God protect you that redeemed mankind,
We, and amend you!" Thus that ancient man.

At once the three young rioters began
To run, and reached the tree, and there they found,
A pile of golden florins on the ground,
New-coined, eight bushels of them as they thought.
No longer was it Death those fellows sought,
For they were all so thrilled to see the sight.
The florins were so beautiful and bright,
That down they sat beside the precious pile.
The wickedest spoke first after a while.
"Brothers," he said, "you listen to what I say.
I'm pretty sharp although I joke away.
It's clear that Fortune has bestowed this treasure
To let us live in jollity and pleasure.
Light come, light go! We'll spend it as we ought.
God's precious dignity! Who would have thought
This morning was to be our lucky day?

"If one could only get the gold away,
Back to my house, or else to yours, perhaps—
For as you know, the gold is ours, chaps—
We'd all be at the top of fortune, hey?
But certainly it can't be done by day.
People would call us robbers—a strong gang,
So our own property would make us hang.
No, we must bring this treasure back by night
Some prudent way, and keep it out of sight.
And so as a solution I propose
We draw for lots and see the way it goes;
The one who draws the longest, lucky man,
Shall run to town as quickly as he can 154-158 What accusations against the old man does the young man make?

169 florins: coins.

178 "Fortune" here means "fate."
Do you think the young men will be blessed by Fortune?

The Three Living, from the Psalter and Prayer Book of Bonne of Luxembourg, Duchess of Normandy.
To fetch us bread and wine—but keep things dark—
While two remain in hiding here to mark
Our heap of treasure. If there's no delay,
When night comes down we'll carry it away,
All three of us, wherever we have planned.”

He gathered lots and hid them in his hand
Bidding them draw for where the luck should fall.
It fell upon the youngest of them all,
And off he ran at once towards the town.

As soon as he had gone the first sat down
And thus began a parley with the other:
“You know that you can trust me as a brother;
Now let me tell you where your profit lies;
You know our friend has gone to get supplies
And here's a lot of gold that is to be Divided equally amongst us three.
Nevertheless, if I could shape things thus
So that we shared it out—the two of us—
Wouldn't you take it as a friendly act?”

“But how?” the other said. “He knows the fact
That all the gold was left with me and you;
What can we tell him? What are we to do?”

“Is it a bargain,” said the first, “or no?
For I can tell you in a word or so What’s to be done to bring the thing about.”
“Trust me,” the other said, “you needn't doubt
My word. I won't betray you, I'll be true.”

“Well,” said his friend, “you see that we are two,
And two are twice as powerful as one.
Now look; when he comes back, get up in fun
To have a wrestle; then, as you attack,
I'll up and put my dagger through his back
While you and he are struggling, as in game;
Then draw your dagger too and do the same.
Then all this money will be ours to spend,
ded equally of course, dear friend.
we can gratify our lusts and fill day with dicing at our own sweet will.”
these two miscreants agreed to slay third and youngest, as you heard me say.

The youngest, as he ran towards the town,
turning over, rolling up and down
ain his heart the beauty of those bright florins, saying, “Lord, to think I might e all that treasure to myself alone!
ld there be anyone beneath the throne od so happy as I then should be?”

And so the Fiend, our common enemy, given power to put it in his thought there was always poison to be bought,
that with poison he could kill his friends.
ken in such a state the Devil sends ights of this kind, and has a full permission re them on to sorrow and perdition;
is this young man was utterly content
ll them both and never to repent.

And on he ran, he had no thought to tarry,
to the town, found an apothecary aid, “Sell me some poison if you will, lot of rats I want to kill here’s a polecat too about my yard akes my chickens and it hits me hard;
I get even, as is only right,
vermin that destroy a man by night.”

he chemist answered, “I've a preparation you shall have, and by my soul’s salvation living creature eat or drink thful, ere he has the time to think,
h he took less than makes a grain of wheat,
see him fall down dying at your feet;
he must, and in so short a while

233 dicing: gambling with dice.
234 miscreants (mɪˈkrɛ-ənts):
evildoers; villains.

243 Fiend: the Devil; Satan.

249 perdition: damnation; hell.

243–251 Why does the Devil have influence over the young man?

WORDS TO KNOW
vermin (ˈvər-ˈmən) n. small animals that are destructive or carriers of disease
You'd hardly have the time to walk a mile,
The poison is so strong, you understand."

This cursed fellow grabbed into his hand
The box of poison and away he ran
Into a neighboring street, and found a man Who lent him three large bottles. He withdrew And deftly poured the poison into two.
He kept the third one clean, as well he might,
For his own drink, meaning to work all night
Stacking the gold and carrying it away.
And when this rascal, this devil's clay,
Had filled his bottles up with wine, all three,
Back to rejoin his comrades sauntered he.

Why make a sermon of it? Why waste breath?
Exactly in the way they'd planned his death
They fell on him and slew him, two to one.
Then said the first of them when this was done,
"Now for a drink. Sit down and let's be merry,
For later on there'll be the corpse to bury."
And, as it happened, reaching for a sup,
He took a bottle full of poison up
And drank; and his companion, nothing loth,
Drank from it also, and they perished both.

There is, in Avicenna's long relation Concerning poison and its operation,
Trust me, no ghastlier section to transcend
What these two wretches suffered at their end.
Thus these two murderers received their due,
So did the treacherous young poisoner too.

O cursed sin! O blackguardly excess!
O treacherous homicide! O wickedness!
O gluttony that lusted on and dined!

Dearly beloved, God forgive your sin
And keep you from the vice of avarice!

WORDS TO KNOW
saunter (sənˈtər) v. to walk in a slow and leisurely manner; stroll transcend (trānˈsənd) v. to go beyond; surpass

288 nothing loth: not at all unwilling.

289 Avicenna's (əˈvĭsənə) long relation: a medical text written by an 11th-century Islamic physician; includes descriptions of various poisons and their effects.

294 Why does the Pardoner say that the young men "received their due"?

296 blackguardly: worthy of a scoundrel; villainous.

299 The Pardoner is now addressing his fellow pilgrims.
y holy pardon frees you all of this,
provided that you make the right approaches,
that is with sterling, rings, or silver brooches.
bow down your heads under this holy bull!
Come on, you women, offer up your wool!
write your name into my ledger; so!
the bliss of Heaven you shall go.
I'll absolve you by my holy power,
at that make offering, clean as at the hour
ten you were born. . . . That, sirs, is how I preach.

God Jesu Christ, soul's healer, aye, the leech for every soul, grant pardon and relieve you sin, for that is best, I won't deceive you.

One thing I should have mentioned in my tale, for people. I've some relics in my bale pardon too, as full and fine, I hope, any in England, given me by the Pope.
there be one among you that is willing have my absolution for a shilling voutly given, come! and do not harden ur hearts but kneel in humbleness for pardon;
else, receive my pardon as we go.
ur can renew it every town or so ways provided that you renew ch time, and in good money, what is due.

am honor to you to have found pardoner with his credentials sound so can absolve you as you ply the spur any accident that may occur.

instance—we are all at Fortune's beck—— ur horse may throw you down and break your neck.

at a security it is to all have me here among you and at call th pardon for the lowly and the great en soul leaves body for the future state!
and I advise our Host here to begin,
most enveloped of you all in sin.
me forward, Host, you shall be the first to pay,
and kiss my holy relics right away.
ily a groat. Come on, unbuckle your purse!"
Connect to the Literature

1. What Do You Think?
   Discuss with a partner your reaction to the ending of this tale.

   Comprehension Check
   - Why are the three rioters looking for Death?
   - What do they expect to find under the tree, and what do they actually find?
   - What happens to the rioters?

Think Critically

2. ACTIVE READING PREDICTING Look back at the predictions you made in your READER’S NOTEBOOK. Were you surprised by the tale’s ending? If not, explain what details led you to predict the ending. If you were surprised, explain what details led you to predict a different ending.

3. Why do you think the rioters set out to kill Death?
   - what they learn from the boy and the innkeeper
   - their view of themselves
   - other factors that may influence their judgment

4. In what sense is the old man’s statement that the rioters can find Death under the oak tree true?

5. Why do you think the character of the old man is included in the tale?
   - the story of his life
   - his views about Death
   - his directions for finding Death

6. In the light of the Pardoner’s true motives, as revealed in the “Prologue,” why is the moral of this tale ironic?

Extend Interpretations

7. What If? If the Pardoner hadn’t revealed so much information about his practices, how might the other pilgrims have responded to his tale?

8. Connect to Life Do you think this story could serve as an effective warning against greed to people today? Why or why not?

Literary Analysis

MORAL TALE “The Pardoner’s Tale” is a moral tale, a story that teaches a lesson about good and evil or what is right and wrong in human behavior. In it, the Pardoner teaches that “the love of money is the root of all evil” by showing how characters who suffer from the sin of avarice, or love of money, destroy themselves in the end.

Paired Activity Working with a partner, analyze how the story’s elements work together to teach the moral. Among the elements to consider are the events of the plot, the personalities and motives of the characters, and the details of the setting. You might organize the elements in a chart like this one.

The love of money is the root of all evil

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Plot</th>
<th>Character</th>
<th>Setting</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

152 UNIT ONE AUTHOR STUDY: GEOFFREY CHAUCER